Adams in the desert, finds the vase containing the buried pearls, but Abba Sigh with his retainers has pursued him and forces him to give the pearls to his people, their rightful owners. Adams tells him that he has lost the Sacred Ruby. This day being the end of the ten years allotted for its recovery, Abba Sigh and the others who were sworn to restore it, are condemned to die by the All Powerful One in the Judgement Hall of the Sacred City of the Leopard People, and Trixie's father is doomed forever to the toils. Adams saves himself from judgement by accusing the others of robbing him as he was about to return the ruby.

Jack Darrell takes Landow, who has the ruby, to the Sacred City in an airplane and Landow drops outside the walls in a parachute, only to find the gates locked against him. He scales the walls and fights his way to the forbidden judgement hall, where he gives up the Ruby, saving the lives of Abba Sigh, the Mystery Man who is now revealed as Jack Darrell's father, and Trixie's father, who is destined to become his father-in-law. Adams is condemned.
